Housing
CenCal Health understands that housing plays an important role in a person’s physical and emotional well-being. Help is available for those who are facing challenging housing conditions, have trouble paying their rent or bills, believe they qualify for housing financial assistance, or are living on the streets. Members and non-members may contact the various organizations listed below.

In addition to housing, some organizations offer further assistance including rehabilitation support, career counseling, life-skills training, transitional case management, and more.
